ENJOY ENGLISH STORY OF THE WEEK — THE ROBBER

I was walking through a Chinese marketplace one day when I saw a very strange sight. A man was crouched behind a woman who was paying for some dumplings. His arms were stretched out and it seemed that he planned to surprise her when she turned around. I asked my friends if the man was a robber and they said yes but that we should be quiet and wait to see what would happen. I did not want the man to rob the lady so I yelled and he quickly ran away when the lady turned around. My friends told me that I made a mistake because the robber could have tried to hurt me. I disagreed. It was better to help the lady even if it was dangerous for me.

What do you think?

1. Did I make the right choice? Why or why not?
2. Have you ever seen a stranger who needed help? What did you do?
3. Should we help someone even if it means that we might get hurt?
4. Can you remember a time when a stranger helped you?

The Golden Rule says:

"Treat Others As You Would Like Them to Treat You"

How does the Golden Rule relate to this week's Enjoy English Story?

Learn the Words

Marketplace - An area where people sell foods and goods.

Strange - Odd or out of the ordinary.

Crouched - To lower the body by bending the legs.

Stretched out - To extend or reach out.

Robber- a person who steals money or goods by force.

Yelled - To make a loud cry or shout.

Mistake - To do something wrong or in error.

Disagreed - to have a different opinion.

ENGLISH WORD OF THE WEEK

Colleague:

Colleague is a person who you work or study with.

For Example:

My work colleagues invited me to go to a party with them next week.

ENGLISH EXPRESSION OF THE WEEK

Everything but the kitchen sink

How to use:

We use this expression when we are talking about a lot of different (or random) things together.

For example:

You can find everything but the kitchen sink under my bed.

ENGLISH TIDBITS OF THE WEEK

Did You Know?

"I go"

Is the shortest sentence in English.

"200,000"

New cell phone accounts are created in China every day.

Riddle of the Week

LOL!

How could a man ride into town on Friday and the next day ride out of town on Friday?

We'll give you the answer in next week's Enjoy English!
